Mother's Day is almost here, and Memorial Day is right around the corner — two perfect reasons to gather your favorite people for a fabulous meal. And if you're lucky enough to call one of these New York City residences home (or even dream about it), you know that a beautifully designed dining room can turn a simple get-together into a truly unforgettable celebration.

This spring, we're spotlighting some of the city's most stunning dining spaces — where incredible design, good food, and even better company come together in serious style.

720 West End Avenue

Tucked into a reimagined Emery Roth classic, 720 West End Avenue is bringing serious old-meets-new energy to the Upper West Side. And while the landmarked architecture is gorgeous, it's the amenities — designed by Thomas Juul-Hansen — that really steal the show.

Their private dining room feels like you've stumbled into a secret garden in the middle of Manhattan. Sunlight pours in, bouncing off the white oak paneling and creating a bright, welcoming space. Even better? It opens right onto a lush landscaped terrace. It's perfect for a relaxed Mother's Day lunch or an early summer dinner under the stars. Who needs the Hamptons when you have this?
