

LUX EXPOSÉ

If your passport is gathering dust and your vacation calendar remains blank, don't fret — luxury living in New York City has taken an exciting turn, offering residents the feeling of an international getaway without ever leaving home. Several of the city's most exceptional residential buildings are drawing inspiration from the world's most beloved travel destinations. From the serenity of a Kyoto garden to the breezy charm of the Greek isles, these NYC homes deliver transformative experiences right at your doorstep.

Sip Rosé and Live French-Inspired Elegance at 720 West End Avenue

Channel the charm of a French summer without leaving Manhattan at 720 West End Avenue, where European elegance meets classic New York sophistication. Another masterpiece by Thomas Juul-Hansen, this reimagined Emery Roth-designed building brings the slow-living luxury of France to the Upper West Side.

The home's signature amenity is a stylish private dining room that flows into a landscaped garden terrace — the perfect setting for long alfresco dinners, celebratory toasts, or quiet evenings under the stars. The seamless indoor-outdoor layout creates a relaxed, almost Provençal ambiance, ideal for embracing a lifestyle filled with joie de vivre.
