New York has no shortage of fitness studios and boutique fitness centers. However, gym membership is optional for residents of a growing number of buildings: New development condos are making increasingly luxurious, well-appointed fitness centers a key component of their amenity package. They feature high ceilings, luxe finishes, state-of-the-art strength and cardio equipment, and bells and whistles like pools, sports courts, and specialty equipment. Not only do facilities like these make it easier for residents to fit in a workout, but they foster a sense of community among fitness enthusiasts in the building.
